PROMINENT DIVINE DEAD

REV. WILLIAM J. McKNIGHT, D.D., PASSES AWAY.

Man of Years and Honors-His Active Career as Minister of the Gospel.

Rev. William J. McKnight, D.D., died last evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Jane McK. Goode, 2012 16th street. Dr. McKnight suffered a stroke of paralysis Wednesday, the second within a year, and although he possessed an amount of vitality that was surprising he was unable to resist the weakening effects and so passed away. The first stroke came last year while he was in Florida, where he had been in the habit of spending the winters for a number of years past. He had never entirely recovered from its effects His wife and four daughters survive him. Dr. McKnight was well known in church circles in this city, where he had spent the greater portion of the years of his retirement from the duties of a permanent church pastorate. As a minister of the Presbyterian Church he was frequently called upon to officiate in the churches of that denomination, and in that direction, as well as in purely missionary effort, he gave fracly of his time and thought.

Dr. McKnight was born in Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, seventy-three years ago. In futherance of a decision which he made at an early age to devote his life to preaching the gospel he entered Hanover College. He became a student in the Princeton Theological Seminary, where he finished the second year of his course with high honors.

Seeks a Mild Climate.

Being obliged, on account of his health, to seek the milder climate of the south, he entered the Theological Seminary at Columbia. S. C., where he completed his course and graduated in the year 1852. His first pastorate was the First Presbyterian Church at Danville, Ky., and later he became the pastor of the Second Church of the same city. Soon after he was settled in his first charge, in the year 1855, Dr. Mc-Knight married Miss Susan Hann of Kentucky. Subsequently he was called to the church in Arundale, Ohio, and then went to Springfield, Ohio. In the latter place he was in charge of the First Presbyterian Church for six years.

For thirteen years he was pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of New Brunswick, N. J., beginning his service in that place in the year 1880. Nearly nine years ago he gave up the exacting duties of the active ministry and made his residence in Even in the retirement which came with advancing years Dr. McKnight was able to respond to many calls, and his work, especially in Florida, was of that character which carries the gospel to those who are without it. He was a man of high ideals affectionate husband and father. When in the c'ty and not engaged in discharging the duties of his profession he was an attendant, with his family, at the Church of the Covenant.

The second lecture in the Unity Society course was given last night at Linden. Md. Mr. H. C. Oberholser of the Department of Agriculture was the lecturer of the evening, and his subject was "A Naturalist About Lake George."

Mr. Oberholser narrated many interesting bits of history connected with the various points which were pictured on the screen, and occasionally took his audience into a charming piece of woodland and showed the nest and eggs or young of one of the attractive birds inhabiting the shores of the lake.

The lantern slides illustrating the lecture were from unusually fine photographs, and many beautiful scenes from this picturesque and romantic lake—"The Loch Katrine of America," as Mr. Oberholser called it—

FOR GREATER WIDTH. Commissioners Make Report on Wisconsin Avenue Bill. The District Commissioners have made a report to Congress on Senate bill 2053, providing for the widening of Wisconsin avenue, or Tenleytown road, to a width of 120 feet from its intersection with 27th street to the District line. The bill provides that upon the dedication to the District of 75 per centum of the land necessary to make the road 120 feet wide proceedings shall be instituted to acquire the remainder by purchase or condemnation.

The Commissioners express the opinion that 75 per centum of the land will come to the District free of cost by reason of denations from time to time as new subdivisions are recorded. As to the tion of the remaining 25 per cent, this being made up of subdivided property, some which is built upon, it would seem equitable, the Commissioners think, that it be acquired as provided for in the bill, the es timated cost of which is $75,000. If no donations are made, the estimated cost, according to the report, is $175,000.

The Commissioners state that they are in favor of the widening of this avenue, as provided in the bill, and would like to see the improvement accomplished. They express regret, however, that on account of the present state of the District finances they cannot see their way clear to recommend the expenditure.

THE CODE RESPONSIBLE.

Statement of Police Court Judges Respecting Commitments. The intendant of the workhouse recently reported to the District Commissioners that more prisoners were being sent to the workhouse than formerly from the Police Court and proportionately fewer to the District jail. The matter was referred to the judges of the Police Court, who have replied, stating that under section 934 of the new code in all cases, either on the United States or the District side of the court, where the imprisonment is six months or less, confinement must be served in the jail or workhouse. "We have thought it best," their letter states, "to send such cases to the workhouse because of the fact that employment is there given to prisoners, while at the jail the prisoners are idle and have nothing to take up their time. Such jail imprisonment is, in our judgment, not to the best interests of the prisoner. If the Commissioners desire us to temporarily send such prisoners to jail on account of the limited capacity of the workhouse we would be glad of such an intimation."

ANNIVERSARY EXERCISES.

Preparations for Observance of February 22 by Public Schools.

Dr. A. P. Fardon, the chairman of the committee of the Washington Board of Trade in charge of the Washington birthday anniversary exercises in the public schools, is busily engaged in arranging the list of presiding officers and speakers for the different schools. In this work he is receiving, as in previous years, the cooperation of a number of citizens who find the experience of coming in contact with the schools interesting, as well as inspiring.

For various reasons, however, the number of those available for this service may not be adequate to meet the demands, and Chairman Fardon trusts that he will be able to secure the aid of some who have not heretofore taken part in this patriotic Proposed Transfer of Census Force.

To the Edito: of The Evening Star:

In an interview with me upon the subject of the proposed transfer of the census force to the classified civil service, printed in the New York Evening Post of the 3d instant, I was quoted in part as follows: "But there is another phase of this question to which I believe public attention has not before been called. There is in the census office a very large proportion of women. It is a well-known fact among department people that the woman clerk is a fixture, that she seldom resigns, and that she lives longer and is far less useful in old age than the man clerk. Certain bureaus of the departments are already becoming greatly hampered by the number of clerks, and the proportion of women is increasing with ominous rapidity. To inject into the classified service the large number of women clerks now in the census office would greatly disturb the balance that should exist between the sexes and result in a deplorable condition of affairs twenty or thirty years hence. Thus the spoilsmen are digging, without knowing t, the grave of their own hopes. Almost all emergency clerical forces contain a largely disproportionate number of women. If the census transfer occurs, and the precedent is thus established, doubtless many And so, when in the mutations of politics the spoils system becomes dominant, loud will be the wailing of the 'faithful' on find-ing almost all the places occupied by women, whom the leaders will not have the temerity to disturb."

The report of the Treasury Department to Congress showing the absence of clerks and employes during the calendar year 1901 on account of all kinds of leave comes very opportunely to support my argument made in the above quotation. The Treasury Department was the first one to employ women clerks in considerable numbers, and it now has by far the largest proportion of old-lady clerks; they were first employed in the treasurer's office, I believe, by General Spinner, and many of those first employes are still in service. This report shows that among males in the Treasury Department the total average leave taken was 33.1 days, while with females it was 39.5 days, considerably higher than the total average of both sexes in any other department. This disparity is very strik-ing in the treasurer's office, where the general average for both sexes reaches the startling figure of 40.3 days, while the average for the Navy Department is only 29.9 days and for all departments 33.8 days. Another alarming feature of the ten-dency to disproportionately increase the number of women clerks is the injustice often resulting to the younger men clerks in the departmental service. When I was in the service I frequently saw bright young men clerks at $900 and $1,000 a year pelled to do the work devolving upon them by the incapacity of their associate old-lady clerks who were receiving $1,200 and $1,400 a year. It is always annoying to a capable young man to have to do the work of an old-man clerk, while the latter gets the pay, but to have to do the work of an old-lady clerk, who gets the pay and cuts off all promotion, is really galling. There is every prospect that all these evils and many more would become a public nuisance twenty years hence if the present census force were taken into the classified service. HENRY A. HAYWARD.

Give the Horse a Chance. To the Editor of The Evening Star:

Those of our citizens who have a sufficient supply of coal will do the horse a kindness if they will refrain from ordering tion. The last few days have been unusually hard on draught horses. Many of our horses are overworked at all times. Any admirer of good horses who has visited London will not have failed to notice the well-cared-for draught horses. They are worked hard and required to draw heavy loads, but they are not hurried. Don't hurry the horses when drawing a heavy load. A horse will work ten or twelve hours per day for many years if handled by careful drivers, if not loaded too heavily and not

When about to start a heavy load give your team a chance to get a good foot-hold. It may save a sprain—perhaps a balk. About a year ago I noticed a finely matched team of browns hitched to a delivery wagon. If I had not seen them several times since I would hardly recognize them With careful handling they would have done good work for ten or fifteen years, but overworked and driven as they are another year will almost kill them.
